FOR PRESIDENT,

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

GEORGE B. M'CLELLAN

OF NEW JERSEY.

GEORGE H. PENDLETON

OF OHIO.

What is it all for? Under no preceeding administration whether Whig or Democratic, have the people been oppressed with such burdens as they are now groaning under. Never before has there been any thing like the monstrous accumulation of public debt, amounting to an incalculable sum, and requiring the imposition of taxes in almost every conceivable form. Under other administrations we have had financial disasters, governmental embarassments, and wars of some magnitude, but never such reckless waste of public money, and consequent oppressive and burdensome taxation. The farmer, the merchant, the mechanic. the lawyer, the doctor, in truth all classes of people, under the abolition rule of Abrabam Lincoln, are taxed as never were men taxed before. More money is spent by this administration in a single day, that would suffice to support the State government of Kentucky for ten years, and all for what?-To subjugate white men that negroes may be free. Mr. Lincoln says there can be no peace or reconciliation with those in rebellion, except upon the condition of the abandonment of slavery. The war with all its expenditure of life and treasure must then continue, if he is re-elected, until he compels the people of the south by subjugation, to give up slavery. HINTS FOR THE CANVASS .- Leave all man ner of violence, bluster, browleating and howling to our adversaries. If you see fit to attend any of their meetings, or witness their processions, maintain throughout an at entive, respectful silence. Save as a spectator or auditor you have no business there; if you hear or see what you can not abide, go quietly away. Leave them a monopoly of the ruffianly blackguardism of disturbing public speakers.

All the votes that gold. money or whisky will buy belong to our adversaries, and will go there at any rate .-We do not need one of them; if we did, it were better to fail for lack of them than to win by their help.

Then and Now --- Democracy vs Aboli tionism.

When Gen. Pearce was President and Mr. Guthrie Secretary of the Treasury, we had a democratic administration and a large majority of democratic members in both the Mexican War was not then extinguish ed, and government bonds, representing the ed and several years must have elapsed before payment could be demanded. But on the part of public officers, had enabled the government to accumulate thirty or forty millions of money in the public treasury for which there was no immediate or pressing the National Democratic Convention, at Chidemand. The democratic Congress, instead of squandering this surpluss of funds, by ap ropriate legislative enactment, directed of the public debt, by the purchase of the government bonds. Mr. Guthrie accordingly advertised that he was prepared under McClellan and Pendleton to the office of Presthe authority of the act of Congress to re | ident and Vice-President of the United States deem the bonds whenever they might bepresented. It will surprise some of our readers to learn, that such was the confidence in the credit and ability of the goverument under democratic rule, that those in whose hands the public debt of that day was held, refused to part with the governmet obligations at any thing like their par value, leford and Hiram Dye. preferring to hold them and draw the in terest, which was always paid promptly and in gold.
